THE WAR Today

By Dewitt Mackenzie
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR ANALYST

The German report that the Russians have opened a major offensive on the southern Vistula front in Poland signals a momentous development if true.

The anxiously awaited Red drive is calculated to provide the perfect complement to the Allied pressure on Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt in the west. It will establish the big squeeze which shortly should give us a fair gauge of the enemy's remaining strength, and ultimately will crush the life out of him.

Open Dardanelles

Into this picture fits in a big way the sensational news that Turkey is opening the Dardanelles for passage of Allied supplies to Russia. This is the quick, feed-line to the Soviet Vistula front.

Uncle Sam's soldiers are suffering heavy casualties in the bloody battle of the Belgium bulge—and the end isn't in sight. So great is the call for manpower in Europe and in the Pacific theater, that Washington is instituting a minimum of 900,000 men for the armed services in the first six months of 1945.

With this stark background, the publisher of a daily newspaper has asked me what substitution there is for reports that, while our boys are being sacrificed, there are French and Belgian youths who also could be used, but are not. Well, that's an unpleasant subject but one which should be ironed out, for the sake of all concerned.

Situation Complicated

To state my conclusions first, I find no support for such an idea. On the contrary, both France and Belgium seem to be doing all they can to get their available men into action, and the Allies are rendering such assistance as they can. However, the situation is complicated and difficult.

Take the case of France. With a pre-war population of about 42,000,000 she might be expected under normal conditions to put a maximum of ten per cent under arms—say 4,000,000—apart from Colonial troops. But actually the French government reports that the Germans are holding 730,000 French prisoners of war, 225,000 voluntary French workers, 750,000 French slaves, 600,000 deportees of military age, and 600,000 deportees from Alsace and Lorraine, mostly men. That's reaching for 3,000,000, or close to three-quarters of France's quota of fighting men.

Short of Equipment

Moreover, France has been short of equipment for those troops she could raise, and hasn't even had sufficient arms for training. Her facilities for manufacture are limited, and she has been contributing some supplies to the Allies.

Despite these handicaps, General De Gaulle has flung an eager force into the flaming western battle front, and is reported planning to add 1,800,000 to the army, making a total of more than 2,000,000. At least part of the equipment problem has been solved. President Roosevelt reported in his recent message to congress that he was glad to say "we are now about to equip new French forces with the most modern weapons for combat duty," and this has now been implemented by the huge new production program announced yesterday.

Belgium Stripped

De Gaulle, by word and action, gives the impression of being imbued with the idea that Frenchmen must undergo trial by combat in order to impart full strength to the spirit of the new France. The country must be delivered by its own men, insofar as they are able to achieve the task.

The story of little Belgium, with her pre-war population of some 9,000,000, is similar, though the Germans stripped the country. Hitler apparently had the idea of keeping France a prosperous vassal state, but Belgium didn't fare so well. The Nazis are said to have carried away much of Belgium's machinery. They even took away the wooden pit-props from the coal mines, so that mining has been given a body blow, and the country is suffering from lack of heat, electricity and transport.

However, while Germany is holding about 575,000 Belgians—war prisoners and slaves—Belgium has some 35,000 soldiers fighting on the western front, and others are training in England. She wants to put more men under arms—but lacks the arms.

That's the story of France and Belgium as I get it.
